IMPROVEMENT STILL NOTED

Think Market Is About Bottomed and Will Gradually Improve and Take a Swing Upward—Railroad Legislation Easing Up Some.

(By I. N. Kinsey)
GLOBE, March 29.—Logan & Bryan of New York say: The advance in Canadian Pacific and general market due to manipulation against the shorts. Great Northern preferred with Canadian Pacific were put up by bull traders.

Dow, Jones & Co. say: Confusing advices are out about strike situation. Good results are expected from federal agencies. Andrew Carnegie says he despises Wall street gamblers. Union Pacific's investments since June 30 last in other securities show shrinkage in market value of nearly $25,000,000. Missouri Pacific, Wabash, Alton, Rock Island, Frisco, Burlington and other roads have combined to fight legislation.

Paine, Webber & Co. say: Just as predicted for past few days, market was much stronger today and supply of stock smaller than any time in past three weeks. It appears that all weak margined accounts have been liquidated or properly protected and urgent liquidation is over. Pressure on North Butte and Range seemed to be off this morning and there was good demand for both. Money is gradually working easier. Railroad legislation is easing up some. A large short interest is outstanding and, taking whole situation in hand, cannot help but feel bullish on the situation and advise buying of good stocks on reactions from now on.

No market tomorrow.

TO THWART DEATH

Baltimore Doctor Suggests Use of Criminals as Antitoxin Factories

There should be only two unpreventable causes of death—old age and accident.

All germ diseases are curable by antitoxins. Antitoxins for nearly all diseases are obtainable through the use of the human animal as a factory. Some are obtainable in no other way.

Convicted criminals should be used for this purpose, if they are willing.

This is an outline of a striking argument made yesterday by Dr. H. Burton Stevenson, formerly president of the Baltimore County Medical Association. It was an impressive statement of what has been accomplished by serum-therapy—or cure by means of anti-toxin—and a prediction of what will follow in the near future.

"A toxin," says Dr. Stevenson, "is the poison of a disease germ. When such a germ enters the body nature, to combat it, provides in the blood a substance which neutralizes the action of the germ's poison. This substance is termed an anti-toxin."

"We say of diphtheria that it runs its course in seven days, or of typhoid fever that it runs its course in twenty-one days. We mean by this that with diphtheria it requires seven days for the body to form the anti-toxin which renders the germ's poison harmless, and with typhoid it requires twenty-one days. By the injection of the anti-toxin in the early stages of diphtheria the poison is counteracted at once, the disease does not have to 'run its course' and the attendant dangers are done away with.

"As a result of this great discovery man's allotted three-score years and ten will soon cease to be a myth. The twentieth century medicine will make disease a harmless indisposition and death by accident and old age the only order of the day. Surgery, electro-therapy and the Roentgen rays are daily demonstrating the fact that hitherto unconquerable diseases are yielding to treatment, and serum-therapy, the glittering dream of generations gone, is becoming a reality."

"The first glittering achievement of serum-therapy was the conquering of the loathsome disease of diphtheria. The mortality from that source was reduced from 36 per cent to 2 per cent. This was Behring's work. The treatment of certain forms of blood-poisoning by anti-toxins followed. Relapsing fever, pneumonia, erysipelas, tuberculosis, dysentery, tetanus, hydrophobia, typhoid fever, plague and cholera have all been attempted, with gratifying results. Jenner's demonstration that smallpox could be prevented by inoculation of cowpox and Pasteur's treatment for rabies are kindred discoveries. In each of these cases the substance injected causes the body to manufacture the anti-toxin necessary to combat the respective poisons."

"The theory upon which serum-therapy is based has been proved to be correct beyond a doubt. The chief difficulty in the way of its more general application is the fact that such antitoxins as have come into common use are obtained from the domestic animals, and only a few of the domestic animals are susceptible to the diseases which human beings are heir to."

"This great obstacle, however, can be overcome by using the criminals in our penitentiaries for the production of anti-serums. A law making the punishment for certain crimes optional with the convicted—imprisonment on the one hand, inoculation with certain disease germs on the other—would solve the problem for all time. With the work in the hands of experienced men, chosen for their medical acumen and not by political influence, a human-produced anti-toxin could be furnished which would supply the medical profession for all, or nearly all, the known diseases due to germs. And it would not be dangerous to the subjects, either."

A Tillman Attack

Senator Tillman was attacking an offender who pleaded a hypocritical and false excuse.

"Why," he cried, "the man is worse than that rich coal dealer who said to his weight clerk during a blizzard:

"'Frank, make that ton of coal for Bell two hundred and fifty pounds short. Mrs. Bell is a poor delicate widow and she will have to carry all of it up two flights of stairs. I don't want her to overtax her strength.'"
